Astellas Pharma Inc. is a signatory to the United Nations Global Compact which demonstrates our existing voluntary support for achieving sustainable growth, including our respect for internationally proclaimed human rights and our desire to ensure that we are not complicit in human rights abuses. In July 2017, Astellas Pharma Inc. was included in the FTSE4 Good Sustainability Index for the sixth consecutive year which includes human rights and labor standards as part of its selection criteria.

We know that slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory labor and human trafficking (collectively referred to as “Modern Slavery” in this statement) is a global and increasing challenge for governments and business.

2. Our Existing Policies on Slavery and Human Trafficking

As a business we recognise our responsibility to respect human rights and manage the risk of Modern Slavery within our own organisation and supply chain. We have, therefore, set the following positions:

- The Astellas Group Code of Conduct states our commitment against forced labor and, in the selection of business partners, their commitment to human rights and labor standards.
- The Astellas Position on Human Rights, which emphasises and expands on our commitment to human rights and high labor standards, was disclosed in April 2017.
This is a commitment that supports embedding respect for human rights throughout the Astellas Group.

- Astellas’ Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) Materiality Matrix identifies ‘Human rights in labor’ as one of the ‘Most Important’ material issues in a scale of ‘Important’, ‘Very Important’, ‘Most Important’.

- The Astellas Business Partner Code of Conduct references the human rights of workers and specifically provides that suppliers shall not use forced, bonded or indentured labor, involuntary prison labor or child labor.

- Astellas also has a speak up culture. Astellas personnel are required to promptly report any known or suspected violation of the Astellas Group Code of Conduct or other illegal or unethical behavior or business practice. Therefore, if there are any concerns relating to Modern Slavery these can be raised in confidence without fear of retaliation through independent third party and internal whistleblowing helplines.

3. Risk Assessment and Due Diligence Processes

Reflecting the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights (UNGP), our activities to combat slavery and human trafficking, described below, are risk based and will continue to correspond with the level of risk identified. We have undertaken or begun the following risk assessment and due diligence processes in our business and supply chains during the period:

- Astellas has a Global Risk Management (GRM) program to proactively identify and manage business risk. The GRM program identifies supplier management as a potential risk and mitigation plans have been implemented to enhance our processes and procedures to ensure that suppliers follow company policies. Senior management is regularly updated on the progress of GRM risk mitigation activities.

- Astellas has started and continues developing a third party lifecycle management program to assess, mitigate and monitor third parties’ inherent risk. This program is managed by risk expert departments which are separated from operational business functions. It will include compliance with labor regulations and human rights as a risk domain when fully implemented.

- Astellas has been globally circulating the Astellas Business Partner Code of Conduct and an associated questionnaire to selected suppliers of direct materials and indirect services in our supply chain. As at 31 March 2018, answers to the questionnaire have been received from around 900 suppliers. There have been no negative answers to the critical questions regarding human rights issues.

- From fiscal year 2013 Astellas has conducted annual paper surveys at all group companies globally to monitor the awareness of human rights issues in our workplaces. In the year ended 31 March 2018 there were no significant human rights issues reported.

4. Measuring Effectiveness – Performance Indicators

In order to monitor the effectiveness of the steps we have taken to seek to prevent slavery and human trafficking taking place in our business and supply chains we will continue to:

- Review the responses to the questionnaires received from suppliers;
• Monitor Modern Slavery concerns raised with whistleblowing helplines;
• Develop a corrective and preventative action plan, including auditing, where we assess that there may be a heightened risk of slavery and human trafficking at specific suppliers.

During the year under review performance indicators did not identify any heightened risk of slavery and human trafficking.

5. Training

In order to raise awareness about the risks of Modern Slavery within our own organisation and supply chain and to ensure that employees understand company policies and commitments, we have taken the following steps:

• Astellas provides an e-learning program to introduce the Astellas Group Code of Conduct which states among other things our commitment to respecting human rights including the prohibition of child labor and forced labor. All employees worldwide are required to take this program.

This statement was approved by the board of directors of Astellas Pharma Inc. on 27 July 2018 and by the boards of directors of Astellas Pharma Europe Ltd. and Astellas Pharma Ltd. on 16 July 2018 respectively.
