

Astellas donates ambulances on First-Aid Day (September 9) Annual donations reaches a total of 231 ambulances

Tokyo, September 5, 2014 – Astellas Pharma Inc. (TSE: 4503; Headquarters: Tokyo; President & CEO: Yoshihiko Hatanaka) announced today that it will donate three high-standard ambulances on First-Aid Day (September 9) to the following three local governments according to a suggestion by the Fire and Disaster Management Agency.

The ambulances will be donated to:

Shirahama-cho Fire Department	(Wakayama Prefecture)
Mine City Fire Department	(Yamaguchi Prefecture)
Itanoseibu Fire Department	(Tokushima Prefecture)

As part of its corporate social contribution activities, Astellas has donated ambulances to fire departments of local governments since 1970 in order to support local governments to provide quality ambulance services and improve the emergency care system. Among the 231 ambulances donated over 44 years, including the three to be donated this year, 52 ambulances are high-standard ones.

Astellas will continue to drive its corporate activities including ambulance donations in order to contribute to the improvement of health care services and community health.
